J. Edgar Hoover
Director of F. B. I.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

You, no doubt, are the recipient of many hundreds of letters, but I do feel as though I must write you.

I have been an ardent fan of yours for many years, reading every article you write in the papers, etc. Wherever there is something to read concerning the F. B. I. I am ready to drop everything to read the article and what a fine job your men do. I admire and respect them and I feel as though no one could do a more thorough job and give better sound advice than you.

I was most annoyed one day when I watched four women on a quiz show and they failed to identify your picture.

Mr. Hoover are you writing a book now. I would like to acquire your books to add to our already big collection of books. Now that we have a den it makes a better place for more leisurely reading.

I will continue to look for any articles that you may have in papers or magazines.

Thank you for taking your time to read this.

Sincerely,

Alan Courtney telephoned Wick at 2:45 and 4:06 p. m., today, from Miami. Mr. Courtney said he has now decided that to publicize the Director's book he will run an essay contest among the students of the 18 Dade County high schools on the subject "The Menace of Communism and How To Fight It," each essay limited to about 1500 words. The contest would begin Monday, February 24, and end March 10. Three winners from each high school would be announced on March 17. Each of the three winners would receive a copy of "Masters of Deceit" autographed by the Director and the date autographed. A board of three judges, between March 10 and March 17, will select the winners. He has already secured Julius Applebaum, attorney, as one of them. School principals and superintendents are back of his plan. He will promote the contest on radio and in newspapers.

Courtney said he had called Mr. Buckley of Henry Holt and had tentatively ordered 60 copies of "Masters of Deceit" which would be shipped to Washington for the Director to autograph. These books would then be reshipped by the Bureau to Alan Courtney at Miami. Courtney said this procedure is agreeable to Buckley who thinks it is a fine idea. Mr. Courtney now wants to know whether the Director would consent to autographing the 60 copies of the book.

At 4:25 p. m., today, Mr. Buckley of Henry Holt called Wick stating he had talked with Courtney and will, if agreeable to the Director, ship the 60 books here for autographing. He asked what to do. Wick told him that as yet the matter had not been discussed with Mr. Hoover; that he should do nothing until he heard from us. Buckley did say that Courtney appeared most enthusiastic and this would appear to be a commendable means of arousing interest not only in the book but against communism.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN:

Courtney in his conversation with Wick stated that all the Director need do is consent to autograph 60 books. Courtney is handling all the rest. It is, therefore, desired that the Director indicate whether the above meets with his approval. It should be pointed out that the books would have to be autographed sometime between now and March 12 or so to permit shipment to Miami for distribution to winners immediately after three winners from each high school are announced March 17. Courtney, of course, and the radio station are buying the books although it is not known what arrangements in this regard have been made.

Mr. Allen, former Personnel Director of the Federal Reserve System in Washington, is a close personal friend of SA [] of the Crime Records Section. Allen has frequently expressed his admiration for the Director and the Bureau and has often commented that the threat of communism is dangerously underestimated by the great majority of American citizens.

SA Keith is giving a copy of "Masters of Deceit" to Mr. and Mrs. Allen and would sincerely appreciate the Director autographing the book to them.

Director

Dear sir:

Here at Laredo we are a training unit. "D" Flight is only one of 10 flights on the line, but we consider ourselves to be the best. Because of this we constantly attempt to turn out the best pilots and officers and we do this by teaching to the best of our abilities not only the principles of flight, but also we try to teach things that all officers should know, or at least be familiar with.

I believe that we are lacking on one important subject. Knowledge of our potential enemy. True, the information is available, but for some reason we have not, to our satisfaction been able to receive the type of material, or the quantity of information that we feel is important. I have written to the Chief of information of the USAF and other agencies, requesting information which we can use to bring ourselves up to date. There are only 32 people in our unit. But we feel that the monumental task of organizing and presenting this information would be well worth the effort of collecting it.

We would appreciate your help. We want to know anything that you feel would give us a clear picture of the manner in which the Soviet acts. In your field specifically, you could give us tips on Soviet espionage and sabotage methods. How can one recognize a Communist? What are some of the tools of his trade? How does he try to convert people? What are the methods they use in extracting information from people? All of these things are important. They give one an insight into the trend of the Soviet mind. Psychological warfare is not a thing of the future. Russia has been conducting a psychological war against us for many years and we want to learn more about it.

Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

[redacted] called at my office this afternoon and stated he appreciated very much being included on the list to receive an autographed copy of the Director's book. He stated that he was very favorably impressed with it and that it presented the subject in a very human, understandable manner which has not been done before. He stated that the only possible criticism might come from the intellectual group that the book is not sophisticated enough but he agreed that the book will receive much wider reading in the manner in which it is prepared.

[redacted] wanted to know what he could do to help to see the book got good distribution. He wondered about a review of the book and I told him that this would be very helpful. He indicated his intentions of preparing such a review. He also stated he intended to see if he could not interest some foundation in securing a large quantity of the book for dissemination. I told him that the Director would be most appreciative of his interest in this matter.

Dear Lewis:

I have taken pleasure in autographing to you
one of the first printed copies of the book "Masters of Deceit."
The book, which is being forwarded under separate cover, will be released to the public by Henry Holt & Company on March 10th.

It is my sincere hope that this account of American communism from its beginning to the present will help alert the American people to the deadly menace of atheistic communism and will show them how to combat it.

With kind personal regards,

Sincerely,

Edgum

It will be recalled that several days ago, Judge [] indicated that his friend, Bill Morton, might be interested in purchasing a quantity of "Masters of Deceit" for the purpose of bringing it to the attention of various confused intellectuals in some of our universities. He stated that Mr. Morton would be in touch with me.

Mr. Morton called this morning. He stated that for some time he has been seriously concerned about the attitude taken by some university professors and others concerning communism, that he has had a sincere desire to do something about it, and that he had decided that the best way was to place information at their command which would straighten out their thinking. Morton stated that in discussing this matter with Judge [] the Judge, in whose judgment he has great confidence, had suggested that it might be well for him to disseminate copies of the Director's new book, "Masters of Deceit." He asked about the book and I briefly outlined it to him. He stated this impressed him as being just what he had in mind. He stated he would like to see a copy of the book if possible and I told him that I was sure that this could be arranged and that one would be furnished him in the near future. He stated that he has in mind spending $5,000 of his own money to purchase as many books as he can and that he would like to place them in libraries and various universities. He stated he particularly had in mind such schools as Dartmouth, in which he is particularly interested having raised a great deal of money for them in the past. He stated he also hopes to interest three or four of his friends in doing the same and remarked that he might discuss it with [] (ph.), who he described as being with the Federation Bank. Mr. Morton sounded rather enthusiastic about the idea.

letter men at their colleges during the 1931 football season. This was in honor of the Silver Anniversary All-America of Sports Illustrated. The Director did agree to serve on this panel and one of the persons chosen for recognition in Sports Illustrated was William H. Morton of Dartmouth College, who was described as the principal in the William H. Morton and Company, Inc., New York City; specialist in municipal bonds; chairman, Municipal Security Committee of the IBA; and president of the Municipal Bond Club of New York City.

Mr. Morton indicated today when he called that his company is the W. H. Morton and Company, Inc., and he emphasized that he was not interested in promoting either himself or his company by the distribution of the book "Masters of Deceit" but simply wished to do something to bring home the menace of communism. He asked about the purchase of the books and I suggested he get in touch with either Mr. Ed Rigg or William Buckley at Henry Holt and Company, which he stated he would do.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

(1) It is recommended the Director send the attached letter to Mr. Morton, together with an autographed copy of "Masters of Deceit."

(2) It is recommended that the attached letter for your signature be forwarded to Mr. Ed Rigg calling attention to Mr. Morton's desires in this matter.

MR. TOLSON:

MASTERS OF DECEIT

Pursuant to your instructions, DeLoach called Miss Maureen McManus, Director of Publicity, Henry Holt and Company, New York, at 11 A.M. this morning and told her that we had made a thorough search but, frankly, had been unable to come up with anything along the lines she had originally suggested to advertise the book in Marshall Field and Company windows. She was advised that we did have several suggestions for her consideration and that we would forward to her airmail special delivery a rough draft sketch of an idea which she might desire to use.

Miss McManus was delighted and stated she would look forward to receiving this sketch. She stated she would call DeLoach just as soon as she had a chance to look it over. She was told that if she had any questions at all, we would be happy to be of assistance. The sketch has already been mailed.

Respectfully,

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Pages 1984-1986, in the discussion on the Interior Department Appropriation bill, Congressman Cannon, (D) Missouri, commented on activities in Russia since World War II and our need to be prepared. Mr. Cannon stated "J. Edgar Hoover, who is more intimately acquainted with the subject than anyone else, says in the preface to his new book, Masters of Deceit, which will be off the press March 10: Since the end of World War II, we have spent billions of dollars to defend ourselves from Communist aggression. Communism is the major menace of our times. Today it threatens the very existence of our western civilization. International communism will never rest until the whole world, including the United States, is under the hammer and sickle."

We have reviewed the 16th installment of the King Features syndication furnished by Henry Holt. It is taken from Chapter 16, dealing with communist techniques of infiltration.

As in past installments, the text has been shortened, changed at points and in some instances reworded. The general theme, however, remains. We have made some minor changes in consultation with the Domestic Intelligence Division.

Henry Holt also furnished two sets of the "finals" on installments 12 through 15. These are the corrected versions of the text containing the changes which we had suggested. There is no action for us to take on these installments.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the attached letter over Mr. Tolson's signature be forwarded to Mr. Buckley of Henry Holt, enclosing the corrected text of the 16th installment.

[redacted] in Senator Bridges' office called me today.

He stated that the Senator wants to make a speech on the floor of the Senate tomorrow on the Director and will also highlight the Director's book, "Masters of Deceit." He stated that he would very much appreciate having a biographical sketch of the Director and since the Senator's copy of the book was at home he wondered if we could loan him a copy for the purpose of preparation of a speech.

I told him we would be glad to do this and it would be forwarded to him right away. I have asked Mr. Jones to forward a copy of the book and the necessary biographical material on the Director to [redacted] right away.

Man Playing the Typewriter

Hasn't the Los Angeles Police Intelligence Bureau "the low-down" on Marie McDonald's actual kidnapping? It allegedly involves a former Detroit hoodlum now in legit biz. Dean Martin told scribes that the reports he would reconcile with Jerry Lewis are untruths. Billy Reed's Little Club celebrates its 11th birthday next Wedzdee. Happy bolted today! Overheard about Gisele MacKenzie's teevee show cancellation: "I can't figger it out," said a columnist. "All I know is that I wish my talent had her kind of talent!" Gisele! Keep your Opchin up! Charlotte Winson, the pretty Latin Q dancer, gets beauquets from Stan Fisher. He's M. Berle's harmonica star. Eavesdropped at the House of Blondes: "On Broadway, all it takes for some guys to become an ingrate is a friend."

Anyone can salvage the Italian liner Andrea Doria. It's outside the 12-mile limit. The law of the sea. The salvager, however, must divvy 50-50 with the owner of the ill-fated ship. The "accidental" death of Harry Fromkes is no puzzle to his intimates. They knew of his losses on the plays "Winesburg, Ohio" and "Square Root of Wonderful". Joe E. Lewis' philosophy: "A little milk is always good for you, so long as it is just a little and it is mixed with rum". At the current rate of scientific progress, Don Rondo (the recording chap) figgers it won't be too long before the scientists catch up with the space comic books. Oooh, geewhizzer. Tina Louise has her clothes torn off (by Aldo Ray) in a movie scene from Erskine Caldwell's top best-seller, "God's Little Acre". John E. Hoover's book "Masters of Deceit" (the story of Communism and how to combat it) is a must for your night-table.

Steve Allen's fifth book, "The Girls on the Tenth Floor," will be unveiled by H. Holt & Co. April 17th. Most prolific man in show biz. Why the Gabor sisters never need psychiatrists. "We break glasses and slam doors and that's healthy," proclaims Magda. Dinah Shore yak'd it up with chums at Cafe Chauveron. Critic Brooks Atkinson (dean of the aisle-assassins) composed this posey for show folks: "Retirement from the stage involves one terrible hazard. The danger that a good part will turn up". Add Sound-a-Likes: "What a Night for Love" and the aria from "La Traviata". News item: "Russians say medals will be awarded only for definite achievements". Like getting out of the country?

Snoop-Skewp: Mona Freeman, once enamoured with Bing (and vice-versa), now holds pinkies with Chas. Compton, both fouring with "Middle of the Night". Alan King, the comic, was fractured at the Vegas dice tables. They never learn. Linda Gleason (one of the Great One's lovely images) and Andrew Buckner keep jazz notable Barbara Carroll busy with requests at the Voyager Room. Good neighbor policy??? Plf-awmers heading for Canada better check with their agents about the new 15 percent income tax slapped on Ameddican entertainers' wages. Add Causes to Support: The terrific benefit (March 31st) at the Old Romanian for the three children and Mrs. Billy Vine. Her husband, a popular, kindly, night club star, passed on suddenly last week. Intimates tell the col'm Billy died broke and Mrs. Vine didn't have enough money (the other night) to feed her brood. New Yorkers, please attend!

Irony: Gisele MacKenzie could have had the femme lead in the town's number one musical smash, "The Music Man." Meredith Willson wrote it with her in mind. He gave her first refusal. She wanted to do her own teevee show which the sponsor droptioned. Sssssssponsorssssss! Big season coming up for Broadway angels. More than 30 plays have been optioned in the last 3 weeks. They say "Family Circle" and "Every Woman's" mag will be married. Some comics (who know a good thing when they read it here) are also adopting the "Don't Invite to a Party" line. Milt Kamen, funny geezer (at Down in the Depths) convulses the crowds there with his routine on same. He credits WW. Imagine dot! Bernard Nierow, who opens at the Embers March 3rd, is the youngest piano star to headline there. He's 21. "New Girl in Town" composer Bob Merrill's new doll is Elizabeth Allen. "Romanoff & Juliet's" Juliet.

Love letter from King Features Syndicate's J. A. Brogan, Jr.: "Dear Walter: I don't know anything about teevee ratings, but the article in Editor & Publisher interests me. Revlon says it will drop your show on March 28th. I am just a poor, old, ignorant American newspaper reader who, after reading that story, is wondering how accurate ratings are. Trendex rated you with 15. Nielsen and American Research both gave you 14.5. One couldn't ask for anything more consistent than that. I understand Revlon assured Desilu it would be happy with a 15."

But let's take a look at other ratings mentioned by E&P. Trendex gives Cavalcade of Sports 10.8 and ARB gives the same program 23.7. Could that be true or is it a typographical error? Trendex also gives Line Up 23.3 and ARB gives it 25.8. That, too, is a bit of a spread as compared to ratings given Winchell. Incidentally, I liked your piece in Sunday's N.Y. Mirror mag on the news biz. What the raters never mention is that the WW File has less than 70 live stations, while competitors (on at the same time) have 197 and 132. So I'm being fired.

The Miami Herald Special: Lou Walters' excellent show at his new Cafe de Paris features the always amusing Wiere Brothers and the remarkable Szonys, dance experts. Their grace and talent result in deafening applause. Marie McDonald opens at the Coconut Grove, Hotel Ambassador, L.A. April 11th. Roberta Sherwood resumes at the Mocambo, Hollywood, on the 9th. (Anybody a bicycle they can spare that week?)... Dorothy Sarnoff's delightful thrushing at the Carillon marked her night spot debut. Her "Butterfly" aria and "King and I" medley are enough to assure big time hotel and night club dates. Marion ("Pajama Game") Colby stars at the Nautilus when she isn't dashing back and forth to pinch hit for some ailing Ace at the swank spots. Nat King Cole, the Eden Roo's new crowd getter, toyed with the out fronters again. Dean Martin's new recording, "Return to Me," is one of his very best. While he was delighting the Americana crowd with his singing, a down front exhibitionist suddenly yelled: "Sing it, Gahdammit! Sing it!" He got his little laugh, although he slightly upset the star. When Dean finished the audience burst into big applause. But I see you've anticipated the punchline. The only one in the crowd who didn't applaud was ill ol' pesto. Oops, soddy, Mr. Miami Herald. We didn't see your item on the robbery at Maxine Andrews. Will the crook kindly return one item that Maxine's mother gave her when she was a little girl? Contact WW, please. The rest of the loot is insured. That's a good little thief.

Dear Mr. Tolson:

I have been given one more request for an autographed copy of MASTERS OF DECEIT which I submit to you for your approval.

Our [redacted] would like very much to have Mr. Hoover inscribe a copy to Mr. Fowler B. McConnell, President of Sears, Roebuck and Company, 325 South Homan Street, Chicago, Illinois. [redacted] feels that this could be important in sales. The question is whether Mr. Hoover knows Mr. McConnell, and if he does not, whether or not he would feel this was a wise idea. Whatever is decided is perfectly agreeable to us. I am simply making the suggestion as requested.

We were most disturbed to learn that there was difficulty about the delivery of the 600 copies of MASTERS OF DECEIT, but delighted to know now that all is well. We received copies Monday, and sent out that afternoon the largest number of review copies we have ever sent on any Holt title.

I believe I wrote you about the good news that we are getting the cover of the Chicago Tribune Magazine of Books on March 9. We also expect to get the Saturday Review cover on or about that date. I feel certain that the news coverage will be very large all over the country. What with the good offices of the FBI assisting us, it could hardly be otherwise.

With my very good wishes,

Sincerely,

Maureen McManus

Dear Mr. Hoover:

My organization received a review copy of your excellent book, "Masters of Deceit." I am deeply grateful for the privilege of reading it over the past weekend. It is a most enlightening book and one which should be read by everyone. In this way only could one truly realize just what we are up against in Communism.

Among "tactics" used by the Communist Party, to attract membership, you mention how much they spend on publications; how little they charge for literature. In "Masters of Deceit" we could meet them at their own game if small cost paper covered copies could be made available. In this way it could have a much wider distribution. I would be proud to stand on the street corner and sell this at any time! At $5.00 a copy many who should be reading it, especially the youth of the country, will find it a bit out of their reach. Possibly you have this in mind for a later date.

I personally want to say thank you and the FBI, Mr. Hoover, for this great contribution to world peace.

Sincerely yours,

In accordance with your instructions we looked over the attached newspaper layout as submitted by [redacted] of Henry Holt and Company for the Marshall Field ad to run on March 10 in the Chicago Sunday Times and Daily News. There appears to be nothing objectionable whatsoever about the proposed ad or phraseology included.

I, therefore, had Mr. DeLoach call [redacted] at 2:00 p.m. today and inform her that we have no objections. She was very appreciative. She specified that the attached newspaper ad is altogether different from the window layout which Marshall Field and Company will use, this particular layout being the one that we sent up as a suggestion to Maureen McManus several days ago.

Will you please call me or wire tomorrow, Tuesday so that I may relay the corrections and/or okay to Marshall Field?

I wish it were possible to use some quotes in the ad, but apparently it is against the store's policy to do so. This layout idea is their standard formula for advertising.

MASTERS OF DECEIT THE STORY OF COMMUNISM IN AMERICA AND HOW TO FIGHT IT. BY J. EDGAR HOOVER. HENRY HOLD & CO., INC., NEW YORK.

374 pp. $5.00.

In the hands of the average writer, the material in this book would probably be dismissed as a fanciful collection of historical data, and a compilation of past and current newspaper stories. But J. Edgar Hoover is no "average" writer. Here he has fashioned a documented, indexed blunt instrument, deliberately designed to bludgeon us out of our complacent conviction that "it can't happen here". In the opinion of this reviewer, he has succeeded, doubled in spades.

With the terse directness which we, as a matter of course now, expect of him, Hoover has traced the history of communism, from the time a little more than a century ago when it was known as the "science of Marxism-Leninism" or "scientific socialism", down to the present day. This portion of his work is more than history; it bears the unmistakable stamp of a man dedicated to a purpose, a purpose dating as far back as 1919, when, as a Special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, he was assigned to prepare a legal brief on the then newly formed Communist Party and Communist Labor Party. That he then recognized the imminence of the danger of communism was obvious.

That he knows now the danger has multiplied itself a hundred-fold speaks from every page.

The book brings into focus as harsh as a police camera some of the things we have read and shrugged off -- heaven forgive us -- as "red herring" talk all these years. It is not sparing of organizations or people. The routine of party discipline, under which the "party" becomes the dominant factor of a party member's life, is laid out for even the blind to see -- along with the utter devotion of those party members to their "cause". The "infiltration" process, whereby the "party" insinuates itself into and eventually takes over legitimate enterprises -- organizations, conferences, unions -- perverting them to "party" ends is described in unmistakable terms. And, with equal clarity, there is a blue-printed method of recognizing these "Trojan horse" tactics, as well as a method of fighting them.

With typical thoroughness, Hoover has included a "glossary" of terms frequently used by communists -- and, while he does not say so -- by some of our pseudo-intellectuals in their "smart" commentaries. I wonder what effect Hoover's icy definitions of those terms will have upon some of our more pinkish prose artists.

MASTERS OF DECEIT is not entertainment. It was not written to entertain. In fact, in making some of his points, Hoover has resorted to the somewhat shop-worn "case-book" device, for instance, following a character through the pulp-paper process of "losing a shadow", in typical "Counterspy" style. Probably the book will take no prizes for literary excellence, for Hoover turns no fine phrases. But it isn't supposed to be a scholarly essay upon "the new concept of democracy", with which some of our contemporaries seem to want to associate the communist conspiracy. Rather it is a warning. A warning to cease concerning ourselves with pettiness and inner strife, with "placing the blame", and to concentrate upon the job of saving ourselves. For, with all its ugliness, all its deceit, all its cynicism, communism has made one promise which communism is dedicated to keep -- that the world will one day be communist. And the communists are thinking in terms of now -- today. . .

So speaks J. Edgar Hoover. And no man, within government or without, is better qualified -- or has a better right -- to give voice to such a warning as this.

Those of us who put words down on paper usually do so for so much per. And reviewers always put a mental price tag upon the volumes they scan. But when I put this one aside, and looked across the Potomac at the Capitol dome, shining white against the night sky, I knew one thing for sure. J. Edgar Hoover didn't write MASTERS OF DECEIT for money.

He wrote it for his country.

Mr. Burke Walsh, editor of the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service (NCWC News Service), called Mr. McGuire on March 4, 1958, in connection with a review of the Director's book "Masters of Deceit," which Walsh is handling for his Service (actual review being written by Father Don Bernard Theall of Catholic University). He wondered if we could furnish him any additional background data of a personal nature such as how long it took the Director to write the book, his reasons for writing it, or any human interest collateral detail which could be used in a letter which NCWC News Service sends out to its subscribers dealing with current matters which would be an additional plug for the book apart from the review itself.

Mr. McGuire told Walsh that similar requests had been received from other sources for this type of data but the Director had not furnished it to anyone since he had given the entire promotion of the book over to the publisher to handle. Walsh's attention, however, was directed to the Foreword in the book which sets forth the Director's reasons for writing the book and what he hoped to accomplish. Walsh stated he could use this.

Walsh then advised that Archbishop Cushing in Boston had expressed such interest in the Director's book he was having his Boston correspondent contact the Archbishop's office as he felt this might be a good little side piece showing the interest of the Archbishop in "Masters of Deceit" in his Archdiocese.

At 10:30 a.m., Dr. Henry of Christianity Today who has been in touch with the Bureau concerning a proposed featured news coverage in the publication of his organization concerning the Director's book, "Masters of Deceit," called to speak with SA [redacted] (an acquaintance) who was not available. He talked with SA [redacted]

Dr. Henry stated his call was based on a Religious News Service release dated February 27, 1958, received by him, in which the Director is reported to have acknowledged the Archbishop Cushing of Boston, Massachusetts, as the inspiration for his writing of the book, and in which the Director's gift of a copy of the book to the Reverend Cushing, with an inscription to that effect is also mentioned, along with the statement that the Archbishop has purchased 1,000 copies of the book.

Dr. Henry states Religious News Service has three sources of news: Jewish, Protestant, and Roman Catholic, and, while stressing that he is interjecting no personal feelings one way or another in the matter, he desires to know if there have been other similar inscriptions to religious leaders of other faiths, if the Catholic news reporters in this instance have "stolen thunder," and whether some overt comment on this connection might not, or should not appear in his contemplated article, which by now he believes will be ready for March 17, 1958, release.

It was indicated that, since he had previously discussed this matter with SA [redacted] would be informed of his call and would call him on this. Dr. Henry stated, in the event he was not in when [redacted] called, his news editor, Mr. Kacharsky, (DI 7-1753) will be glad to receive our comments.

RECOMMENDATION:

NOT RECORDED

133 MAR 10 1958

That Dr. Henry be called back and advised as follows: The Director autographed and forwarded copies of the book, "Masters of Deceit" to personal friends in all faiths, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, and that in each instance where one of the Director's friends had been of assistance in connection with the book, the Director appropriately acknowledged such in the inscription. These inscriptions, of course, are personal matters and it is impossible to comment on them."

We have reviewed the nineteenth installment of the King Features syndication furnished by Henry Holt. It is taken from Chapter 17, dealing with communist fronts.

As in past installments, the text has been shortened, changed at points and some sentences reworded. The general theme, however, remains. We have made some minor changes in consultation with the Domestic Intelligence Division.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the attached letter over Mr. Tolson's signature be forwarded to Mr. Buckley of Henry Holt, enclosing the corrected text of the nineteenth installment.

RELEASE ON DELIVERY

REMARKS BY SENATOR STYLES BRIDGES (R.-N.H.) ON THE FLOOR OF THE U. S. SENATE
MARCH 6, 1958

MR. PRESIDENT: I take this opportunity to invite the attention of the Senate to a new book which is entitled "Masters of Deceit," by J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

This 337-page book gives a penetrating analysis of the Communist ideology and apparatus. In plain, factual language, the author exposes the Communist conspiracy for what it is. He vividly describes the ungodly tactics and strategy which have been used to enslave 40% of the Earth's population.

The information which can be gained from this book will more than compensate for the time which is devoted to its reading. This book is most valuable because, in my judgment, there is no man in America more familiar with, and aware of, the Communist conspiracy than the author.

When organized Communism first appeared as a force in this country, Mr. Hoover quickly recognized its insidious design. In the year 1919, he wrote as follows about the Communist Party concepts: "These doctrines threaten the happiness of the community, the safety of every individual, and the continuance of every home and fireside. They would destroy the peace of the country and thrust it into a condition of anarchy and lawlessness and immorality that passes imagination."

Since that time, through his vigilance, the Communist Party in America has been under constant surveillance. Time and again under his leadership, the FBI has been able to create consternation among American Communists through public disclosures of their continuing conspiracy. It is noteworthy that from a peak American Communist membership of 80,000 in 1944, membership is now less than 25,000. While these figures do not minimize the danger, they do cause me to ponder what the membership would have been without the continuing vigilance of the Federal Bureau of Investigation under such superb leadership.

Mr. Hoover has, during his lifetime, been given literally hundreds of awards in tribute to his exemplary service to our country. These range from a 1936 award from the Boy's Clubs of America in "recognition of his services on behalf of the boyhood of America . . ." to the "President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service" bestowed on him by our President only a month ago. To these tributes, I simply add that in writing "Masters of Deceit," J. Edgar Hoover has again done a great service to the people of America.

By letter dated March 2, 1958, [redacted] 171 Chestnut Street, Fredonia, New York, indicated that he felt the word, "no," should be omitted from line 13 of page 269 of "Masters of Deceit." Mr. Tolson commented on that letter, "If true, suggest correction in next printing in note to Rigg."

We have reviewed [redacted] comment and feel that the text as it now stands, "in no unmistakable terms," is a common colloquial expression used for emphasis. Our proofreaders and those of Henry Holt and Company so regarded it. It is not felt, therefore, that any change is warranted.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

(1) That no change be made in the book.

We have reviewed the seventeenth and eighteenth installments of the King Features syndication furnished by Henry Holt. They are taken from Chapters 16 and 17, dealing with communist infiltration techniques and fronts.

As in past installments, the text has been shortened, changed at points and some sentences reworded. The general theme, however, remains. In paragraph one of the "prelude" of installment 18, King Features has added new material. In lines 7 and 8 a quotation is given from "one historian," who is not identified. It is felt that this is satisfactory. We have made some minor changes in consultation with the Domestic Intelligence Division.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the attached letter over Mr. Tolson's signature be forwarded to Mr. Buckley of Henry Holt, enclosing the corrected text of the 17th and 18th installments.

scores of Congressmen it believes too conservative or unfriendly. Soon public war will be declared on labor's political opponents—at a special educational conference early this year in the Midwest.

It is contemplated that the conference will cover political techniques such as registration, dollar collections, organization of COPE's (political committee—VR), election day procedures, and the organization and activities of women's divisions—

Says the confidential report.

Sounds like we're back in the torchlight parade era.

In order to avoid delaying the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the second of these articles be printed in the Record at this point as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

INSIDE LABOR

(By Victor Riesel)

Never underestimate the power of a WAD in politics. Labor's streamlined strategists are not. For I write of belles, not bills. A WAD in labor's national campaign machinery is a Women's Activities Director.

A confidential 19-page memorandum of massive political retaliation against labor's opponents reveals that much of the unions' precinct work will be done by women this year. The unpublished report was submitted by COPE—the Committee on Political Education—to the AFL-CIO executive council at its midwinter session last month. The report reveals plans for a dynamic, imaginative drive in coming months to retire Congressmen considered too conservative by leading laborites.

An experimental pilot school for women in politics has been functioning for some time, the document reveals on Page 13.

"In Florida, the State organization (of COPE-VR) established a school attended by 50 women trade unionists and union wives in the State and conducted by COPE representatives. The school was extremely successful and it is expected it will produce tangible results in the 1958 campaign."

Typical of the use to which the Florida WAD's will be put is a push for ex-Senator Claude Pepper—if he decides to run against incumbent Senator Spessard Holland. The fight will be made in the Democratic primaries and will make national news.

The COPE report also states that in "virtually every State, officials have undertaken such a program with the help and guidance of the COPE Women's Activities Directors, or are seeking ways of doing so."

Women's divisions are given considerable credit for successfully getting union members to register to vote. In turn, these registration drives are credited by the COPE report with election victories. On page 7, the document states:

"Oregon, Washington and Wisconsin feel strongly that their registration drives made their recent electoral success possible."

It is believed that the WADs, as well as the regular labor machinery, will be used in a dramatic move into the usually conservative suburbs of postwar America. Says the report:

"Two special studies are now underway in the national COPE office. One is the continuing inquiry into changes in the voting pattern resulting from the growth of suburbs. The other concerns existing relationships between farm and labor groups throughout the country."

"Preliminary work on the suburban project indicates that the first impact of suburban development is wearing off and that, as mortgages and time payments begin to pinch in a static or declining economy, traditional voting patterns are returning.

"Considering factors leading to the tremendously rapid growth of the suburbs, it would not be surprising to witness in these areas a wide swing of the political pendulum from conservatism to liberalism as the economy slows."

The report reveals labor's detailed plans for not stopping with the ex-urbanites—but driving into what COPE hopes will be greener political fields beyond the outskirts of the great cities. Efforts are being made to reach individual farmers as well as friendly farm groups.

This has happened in "virtually all States in which there is an important agricultural community." There are COPE staff members specializing in farm-labor relationships.

There are also other specialists seeking out other special voters' groups. COPE told the AFL-CIO high command that it "has been able to step up" its activities among minority groups. COPE now publishes a semi-monthly newsletter with this objective and has added two special representatives to its staff for work in this area.

From special pay-your-poll-tax stickers in southern States to serving cold lemonade and labor literature at county fairs, the unions' national political committee is on the move.

MASTERS OF DECEIT, BOOK BY J. EDGAR HOOVER ON THE COMMUNIST IDEOLOGY AND APPARATUS

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, I take this opportunity to invite the attention of the Senate to a new book which is entitled "Masters of Deceit," by J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

This 337-page book gives a penetrating analysis of the Communist ideology and apparatus. In plain, factual language, the author exposes the Communist conspiracy for what it is. He vividly describes the ungodly tactics and strategy which have been used to enslave 40 percent of the earth's population.

The information which can be gained from this book will more than compensate for the time which is devoted to its reading. It is most valuable because, in my judgment, there is no man in America more familiar with, and aware of, the Communist conspiracy than the author.

When organized communism first appeared as a force in this country, Mr. Hoover quickly recognized its insidious design. In the year 1919, he wrote as follows about the Communist Party concepts:

These doctrines threaten the happiness of the community, the safety of every individual, and the continuance of every home and fireside. They would destroy the peace of the country and thrust it into a condition of anarchy and lawlessness and immorality that passes imagination.

Since that time, through his vigilance, the Communist Party in America has been under constant surveillance. Time and again under his leadership the FBI has been able to create consternation among American Communists through public disclosures of their continuing conspiracy. It is noteworthy that from a peak American Communist membership of 80,000 in 1944, membership is now less than 25,000. While these figures do not minimize the danger, they do cause me to ponder what the membership would have been without the continuing vigilance of the Federal Bureau of Investigation under such superb leadership.

Mr. Hoover has, during his lifetime, been given literally hundreds of awards in tribute to his exemplary service to our country. These range from a 1936 award from the Boys' Clubs of America in "recognition of his services on behalf of the boyhood of America" to the "President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service" bestowed on him by our President only a month ago. To these tributes, I simply add that in writing Masters of Deceit, J. Edgar Hoover has again done a great service to the people of America.

SOUTH DAKOTA WEATHER

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. President, in the course of introducing me as a speaker at the luncheon of the Washington Board of Trade to honor Capt. Finn Ronne, the Antarctic explorer, Tuesday, Master of Ceremonies Mark Evans made a remark to this effect:

A man from South Dakota should know what a winter in the Antarctic is like.

In parrying this jest, I somewhat boastfully offered to wager Mr. Evans that temperatures at home in South Dakota during the past 3 months would average 10° higher than Washington's.

The Washington Post immediately set out to check the facts. In a story appearing in this newspaper yesterday, I was facetiously accused of reading my home State thermometers upside down.

The Post said average temperature in Washington during the past 3 months was 35° as compared with 23° in Huron, S. Dak. This, the Post said, made Mr. Evans the winner of the wager by some 22°.

But, Mr. President, my home is in the Black Hills, in the western part of the State, and it was this area to which I was referring. The Weather Bureau was unable to supply figures for my home near Custer. However, it found the average temperature at nearby Rapid City during these months to be 29.6°.

Compared with the 35° temperature credited to Washington, my home town area was only slightly more than 5° cooler during this period. And because of the drier climate in South Dakota, I submit that it felt 10° warmer.

It will also interest him and other Washingtonians to know that the maximum temperature at Rapid City was higher than Washington's on 42 of the 90 days in question.

Out where I come from, the natives do not scurry to Florida to escape winter's icy blasts. They prefer to remain in the beautiful Black Hills, where they can enjoy not only balmy temperatures, but also some of the most beautiful mountain scenery in the world. A palm tree is not to be compared with a Black Hills spruce or ponderosa pine in a winter setting of snow and sunshine.

Why, only last month some Florida residents fled to South Dakota. Ostensibly this was for the purpose of obtaining hay for Florida livestock, but this

SHORTAGE OF COLLEGE TEACHERS IS CAUSING A REAPPRAISAL OF GRADUATE PROGRAMS

(By Benjamin Fine)

In recent weeks there has been considerable ferment on the question of graduate study in the Nation's colleges and universities. Many educators have begun to challenge the present master's and doctoral programs.

A major reason for the concern lies in the growing shortage of teachers on both school and college levels. Most high schools require their teachers to hold a master's degree. And colleges generally seek faculty members who have or are earning the doctor of education or doctor of philosophy degree.

Recently four university deans—from Columbia, Harvard, Duke, and the University of Toronto, issued a sharp critique of the method used to train candidates for the master's and doctor's degrees. The report called the present methods sterile and urged that a substantial revision be made in the course of studies now offered. The four deans also complained that it takes far too long to train a doctor of philosophy.

Dean Jacques Barzun of the Columbia Graduate Faculties, one of the four deans making the report, wrote: "The time spent in making professional scholars is too long for the result achieved."

BOTTLENECK FOR DOCTORS OF PHILOSOPHY

The issue of graduate study is stressed in the current annual report of Dr. Benjamin F. Wright, president of Smith College. Referring to the doctor of philosophy bottleneck, Dr. Wright urged the Nation's educators to revise their thinking on the question of graduate programs. He, in common with other prominent educators, made these general complaints:

(1) It takes much too long for the average student to get a master's or doctor's degree. In some instances, students spend from 10 to 15 years on the doctor of philosophy, working on it on a part-time basis.

(2) Too much emphasis is placed upon the research or thesis side of the doctor of philosophy. Many students fall by the wayside after completing all their formal course requirements, because they simply cannot complete their thesis along the line required by their college committee.

(3) The doctor of philosophy program is often too rigid and regimented. Students are required to follow certain set patterns, regardless of individual needs or abilities. More flexibility is asked by Dr. Wright and the other educators who have been examining this question in recent months.

Columbia announced recently that it planned to make drastic changes in the doctor of philosophy requirements in the field of chemistry. The college proposed a combined 6-year program, which would mean that the student would receive his doctor of philosophy 2 years after completing the 4-year college course. Other colleges are planning similar changes in various fields.

The great graduate-degree bottleneck is in the field of education. Dr. Wright said that in some instances the candidates do not get a doctorate until they are in their middle forties. This would mean the college graduate may spend as much as 20 years working toward a doctorate. In the meantime, of course, the student gets a teaching job, gets married, raises a family, and takes a course or two each year toward his doctorate. By the time he gets his coveted degree he is not in the mood to do creative or constructive scholarship or to continue in the field of research.

AMERICAN TRADITION

The doctor of philosophy alone among all the other degrees has remained almost untouchable for the last half century. One hundred years ago the doctor of philosophy was not offered in any American institutions.

Most scholars who wanted this degree went to Germany for their doctoral work.

Yale University granted the first doctor of philosophy in 1861, for 2 years' work beyond the bachelor of arts degree. Most of the work was taken away from the campus. Twelve years later, in 1873, Yale had granted 23 doctors of philosophy. This represented most of the doctoral degrees awarded by American institutions up to that time.

Other universities gradually added the doctor of philosophy. Pennsylvania, Columbia, Harvard, Johns Hopkins graduated a few doctoral degrees around the year 1876. The 2-year postbaccalaureate period for the degree was gradually lengthened to 3 years. However, although 3 years is the theoretical standard, a large majority of candidates, as Dr. Wright has shown, spend much more time than that.

There are not many accurate statistics concerning the actual age at which students receive their doctor of philosophy degrees. However, in 1944, Dr. S. L. Pressey, of Ohio State University, made a study in which he found that scientists listed in American Men of Science received a doctorate at a median age of 29.5. Those represented in the humanities and social studies as listed in The Directorate of American Scholars acquired their doctorate at a median age of 32.7.

This would indicate, Dr. Wright reports, that the work for the doctor of philosophy degree is not completed, even for the scientist, until 6 to 8 years after graduation from college. For other scholars the degree is usually earned from 10 to 15 years after the bachelor of arts.

Many educators agree with Dr. Wright's suggestion that "what we need is the acceptance of the principle that the doctor of philosophy degree is a preprofessional degree in the same sense that the doctor of medicine and doctor of law degrees are preparatory to practicing the professions of medicine and law."

TWO YEARS FOR A DEGREE

The Wright report makes this observation, which appears to be receiving serious consideration in the academic field: "If the student attending a first-rate college spends most of his time during the junior and senior years on a special field, more than 2 years of additional study in graduate school is rarely needed or even desirable." Moreover, Dr. Wright holds that more than a year on a thesis is unnecessary either to give the student experience in research or to enable him to deal with his subject with reasonable thoroughness.

It is evident that much thinking is now going on in American universities on the issue of graduate work. If the teacher shortage is to be met, then it will apparently be necessary to make a drastic reexamination of the doctor of philosophy and other doctoral programs.

LABOR'S 1958 POLITICAL STRATEGY

Mr. GOLDWATER. Mr. President, Victor Riesel, one of the Nation's leading writers on labor questions, has prepared two articles on confidential documents which he has which are supposed to be only in the hands of the leaders of labor. Because I feel that these are so important, I wish to read the first one, which is quite brief, and I shall insert the second in the RECORD. I read from the first statement:

INSIDE LABOR

(By Victor Riesel)

If anyone believes that labor's high command plans to sit out this congressional campaign, he is living in the penthouse suite in some ivory tower. True, labor has said little about politics, but there is a 19-page blueprint for action in the files of the Committee on Political Education—COPE—the AFL-CIO's own national political committee. Marked "Confidential," it painstakingly provides instructions for getting millions of union members into the precincts come summertime.

The report promises its people it will distribute at least 40 million pieces of literature in the next 8 months.

"During this election year COPE plans an intensive public relations campaign which will utilize new leaflets and handbills, posters, special newsletters, pamphlets, special bulletins to particular States where particular situations warrant, films, radio and television The pieces of literature we will use should total between 40 million and 50 million," the report reveals on page 16.

While these pour from COPE's central headquarters in Washington, labor's high command has earmarked over $200,000 to place full-time labor-political directors in States where the unions are least influential and have special targets for defeat. On pages 2 and 3, the report reveals:

"The success or failure of the COPE program rests basically on the amount of grass roots activity. Elections are won in the precincts more often than in the headquarters This program contemplates that COPE will match, up to $5,000 a year, funds put up by a State COPE for the purpose of employing a full-time COPE director or, where a full-time COPE director is already employed, a full-time director of women's activities.

"Negotiations to launch such a program are underway in the following States: Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico, Oklahoma, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Mississippi, Arkansas, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Maryland, Delaware, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine.

"It is expected that this program will substantially stimulate activity on the State level in the political field."

Part of this activity will be one of the most sweeping political drives any organization has attempted—the registration of every one of the AFL-CIO's 13,500,000 members.

This drive springs from the recommendation of George Meany that "registration should not be merely part of a short-lived, high-pressure political campaign, but should instead start the day after election and become an integral part of the normal, everyday work of each international and local union organization."

Right now permanent committees are being set up in each local union—the goal being some 60,000—and each local central body. The drive was launched because of what the political leaders report has been a "false self-confidence, a feeling that 'most of our people are registered.'"

"This is simply not true; most of our people are not registered. When our people learn the facts, they will be shocked into action."

In some unions less than 10 percent of the membership is registered and eligible to vote. This is better than in 1954, when it was learned that some unions had as few as one and a half percent eligible to vote.

Therefore COPE has quietly started "a national inventory of registration." This is the first time in the history of American labor that such a countrywide inventory has been taken. COPE sent out a letter to each of the AFL-CIO affiliates. These national outfits, in turn, are writing to each of their locals. The locals are expected to fill in cards on who can vote and then rush the information back to central headquarters.

What I have reported here is but the sketchiest of details on just a few of the highlights of labor's drive to defeat

By referral from the Director's Office, a telephone call from captioned individual was handled this afternoon by SA Gordon E. Malmfeldt of the Crime Records Section.

[redacted] stated that she has read the Director's book, "Masters of Deceit," and was greatly impressed by it. She said she has had occasion to comment on the book among her lady friends and has made the book required reading among her children.

She said the purpose of her call was to determine how a person in an outlying, remote area of the country could get in touch with the FBI. This was explained to her and she expressed her sincere appreciation. She also ^{was} thanked very profusely for her generous comments regarding the Director's book.

RECOMMENDATION:

None. For information.

William Buckley of Henry Holt, by letter dated March 7, 1958, forwarded a communication from King Features Syndicate suggesting a minor change in the wording of installment number one. (paragraph 7 page 3). We have reviewed the suggested rewording, in consultation with the Domestic Intelligence Division, and feel that it is satisfactory if a slight change is made (as indicated on the enclosure).

We are returning the King Features original copy, with our suggested change, to Mr. Buckley.

Frank McNamara, Assistant Director, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 610 Wire Building, Washington, D.C., is in charge of all Americanism activities for the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW). He was sent a personally autographed copy of the Director's new book. Conversation was later had with him on several occasions relative to the book. It is known that McNamara personally wrote the attached review of "Masters of Deceit" and had it placed in the VFW publication "Guardpost for Freedom." This publication reaches 200,000 members of the VFW on a monthly basis.

I spoke with Dutch Ellis by reference from the Director's office today. He stated at the time the Whitehead book came out he had gotten some of the boys in New York set up and highly publicized the book. He has received his copy of the Director's book, "Masters of Deceit," and is highly impressed with it and he wants to publicize this book in the same manner as he did the Whitehead book.

Ellis stated he had mentioned this to Mr. Nichols before he went to Europe and Nick thought it would be a wonderful idea and suggested he get in touch with us here in Washington. Mr. Ellis states he plans to drive down Monday and will be here early Tuesday morning in connection with other business and would like very much to set up a meeting with you in connection with this matter. He also stated that he has one other thing in mind that he desires the Director's approval on and that is paying tribute to the FBI in one of their advertisements. He wanted to know if you would be in town on Tuesday the 11th and I told him I did not know what your commitments were but that I am sure you would see him if you were here. He stated he would get in touch with me upon his arrival in the city.

If you desire to see Mr. Ellis and would indicate a time, I will so advise him when he calls.

Phil Bucci of the public relations firm Phil Bucci Associates, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, called Mr. DeLoach 3-11-58. Bucci handles many prominent public relations accounts, including the Philadelphia Catholic Archdiocese, the Pennsylvania American Legion, the Junior Order of United American Mechanics (JOUAM), and others. DeLoach has discussed previously with Bucci several matters concerning the Director's new book. The Director sent Bucci a personally autographed copy. Bucci has been instrumental in having JOUAM place a full review of the book in its April, 1958, publication which will reach some 70,000 members.

During his call 3-11-58, Bucci mentioned that Clyde Wilmeth, executive secretary, JOUAM, had told him this morning that this organization would buy 1,000 books for the purpose of providing approximately 1,000 councils of JOUAM with the Director's book. Bucci wanted to know how the organization should go about buying such a large order. He was given the name of Ed Rigg of Henry Holt and Company. He then stated that Clyde Wilmeth would get in touch with Ed Rigg within the next few days to place the order.

Honorable J. Edgar Hoover
Washington,
D. C.

My dear Mr. Hoover:

Perhaps you will consider this letter to you as a 'Fan' letter and which I guess it really is. However, please don't be too shocked at what I may be writing you - as I am quite sure I am reflecting the thoughts of many of 'real' American "Moms" in saying what I place on this page to you.

First of all, I am the 'Mom' of three young men, all of whom were in WW-II. The youngest one (of course it would be that way) was in the Pacific SW and had plenty of real experience in that area - of all kinds and types - but he came back home again, quite himself - thank our dear Lord - and is now holding a good position in the business world. The other two were shifted around all over the wonderful and great USA - but one of them didn't come out so well - even with NOT going out of the country but I am glad they are all well, and in their own dear Land. Well, that is enough about my gang!

While I, myself, am sort of 'getting along' as they say, I still hold a good secretarial position and have a good standing with those I am privileged to work with.

Now, about your 'Book - Masters of Deceit' - I have glanced through a little of it - and will carefully ENJOY it as I have the time to do so. I really mean it when I say "enjoy" as I know you, as one of our really great and fine AMERICAN men, KNOW what you are talking about - and because you do stand for all that is GOOD, FINE and DECENT, is why I am writing this to you - and to tell you that because of all THAT YOU STAND FOR and REPRESENT, I love you deeply!!! Isn't that a shocking thing - from an 'ole lady' like me! However, Mr. Hoover, please accept my chatter as it is meant to be - one real American to another real American..... do you know, I wish I could have lived in our beloved Lincoln's time - as he is another 'man' I also LOVE, even now....!

This so-called 'Fan' letter does not need any reply - it is written to you deep from the heart - and to also hope that in some way or another your wonderful book will show to our own people how much we must be 'On the Watch' and help safe-guard our beloved country so that coming generations will also enjoy it as we have been privileged to do.

Only the sincerest of good wishes for you and yours, always.

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEATING. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Speaker, it is most appropriate and fitting for the gentleman from New York, my colleague, Mr. KEATING, and my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, to pay tribute to this great American patriot, J. Edgar Hoover, and to his monumental work, Masters of Deceit. This book will leave a lasting impression upon America and help to mold the American mind. I believe that we can learn to survive. A work of this kind is a tool in helping us to learn to survive. J. Edgar Hoover calls this his primer of communism. It is exactly that. I hope it becomes a textbook.

It is written in language that is understandable to everyone. It reduces the menace of communism to its simplest terms so all can understand and see its insidiousness.

It is very important to do something about communism; so one chapter, chapter 22, is devoted to "What the Average Person Can Do To Combat Communism." One warning is that everyone should be able to spot the Communist front, so as to recognize it when he sees it operating.

Mr. Hoover also makes an appeal to report to the FBI all information believed to be in the best interest of the American cause. He thinks, and says, that the American people have not only a right but an obligation to protect their institutions and freedom against atheistic communism.

The book traces the Community Party from the days of Lenin and Stalin to the present as it operates in the United States and tells why people become Communists.

The lessons found in Masters of Deceit are lessons which all Americans must learn. We must learn to survive. J. Edgar Hoover's name will go down in history as a great American patriot and a defender of freedom wherever it is found.

Mr. KEATING. I thank the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. EDMONDSON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate this opportunity to join in a well-deserved salute to J. Edgar Hoover and his new book, Masters of Deceit. All Americans owe a great debt of gratitude to Mr. Hoover and to the dedicated corps of agents whom he leads. All Americans will read with profit anything Mr. Hoover writes on the subject of the menace of communism. No American citizen has done more to alert our Nation to the great danger of this insidious conspiracy against freedom. No American is more deserving of this tribute from both sides of the aisle in the House. I hope and trust that J. Edgar Hoover will continue to serve America for many years to come.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Speaker, I at this time ask unanimous consent that the following gentlemen may extend their remarks at this point in the Record: The gentleman from New York (Mr. REED).

Mr. PELLY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEATING. I yield.

Mr. PELLY. I think the gentleman from New York has done a great service in calling our attention to this publication. I know that the gentleman from New York has considerable knowledge of the matters which are in that book through his position as ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

I wonder if the gentleman from New York will agree with me that it is very fitting in this time that the American people have such a high esteem of the Director of the FBI and the organization which he heads.

Mr. KEATING. I think that the high esteem of the American people is very important to the performance of his task in the dedicated way in which he has performed it, and I know that he would be the first to say that he could only have done what he has done because he has so universally enjoyed the understanding and backing of the people of the country.

Mr. PELLY. I wonder if the gentleman would not also agree that it is equally unfortunate that the citizens of this country do not have a full knowledge of communism and the ways in which the Communists work; and that, therefore, this book is must reading for every American.

Mr. KEATING. I think no one, after reading this book, could have much doubt about the situation in this country.

SUBJECT: E. H. (DUTCH) ELLIS
PROMOTION OF "MASTERS OF DECEIT"

With reference to my memorandum to you earlier today concerning the assistance Dutch Ellis is giving in making contacts in the entertainment field in the interest of "Masters of Deceit," Mr. McGuire, late this afternoon, telephonically advised Ellis that the Director would sign the books to the persons we had discussed and that we would try to get them out late tomorrow, shipping them to Ellis in care of 55 West 54th Street, New York City, marked for the attention of Ellis was delighted, stating that he would follow this very closely himself and that he would have his people all lined up by the end of this week and they would start making their contacts with the books next Monday.

Mr. McGuire gave Ellis a rundown on the persons to whom books will go, at which point Ellis advised that he had originally knocked Eddie Fischer off the list because of the musical type show Fischer has but that, upon returning to New York and realizing that Fischer had worked for Liggett Meyers, he had decided on his own to make a contact with Fischer. Mr. McGuire mentioned this item regarding Fischer to you earlier and, since the Director and you know Fischer, Ellis was told that the Director would also autograph a book to Eddie Fischer and it would be in with the group being sent to New York.

Ellis stated he would notify us as to any specific times when references to the book might be made by any of the persons being contacted so we could watch from this end and that he, of course, would check from his end so we would know exactly what was going on.

We are preparing the books now and they will be through to you early Thursday. As soon as they are signed, we will see that they are immediately shipped to New York.

[redacted] staff member of the National Americanism Commission, The American Legion, told Mr. DeLoach on 3-12-58 that the Legion's national librarian [redacted] had mentioned to him that it would be a very wonderful gesture if the Director could personally autograph a copy of his new book, "Masters of Deceit," which the Legion could place in its national library at Legion headquarters, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Mr. DeLoach has been in this library on a number of occasions. There is very prominently displayed in the library a selection of outstanding books by prominent men in the United States. Only the outstanding works are selected for this collection. [redacted] told [redacted] that the Director's book would occupy a very prominent place and could serve as a reference work to all officials of the Legion who are permitted to use the library.

The Director may desire to forward to [redacted] a copy of "Masters of Deceit." There is no need to personally autograph the book to any one. It is suggested, however, that the Director's signature be placed on the first page of the book. If agreeable, DeLoach will have the Washington headquarters of the Legion forward this book to the Legion library in Indianapolis under the National Commander's signature.

In its review of "Masters of Deceit," the "New York Post" has questioned the Director's statement that there were 800,000 communists in Roumania when the Party took over that country in 1945.

This figure was taken from a research paper prepared by the Central Research Section. The original source is "Newsweek" Magazine, March 12, 1945. This states that the communists (at time of the takeover) did not number more than five percent of Roumania's population. Since the population of the nation in 1945 was 16,409,000 this would mean, according to the "Newsweek" source, a Party membership of 800,000. Our published figure therefore is accurate.

Mr. Bridges stated "The information which can be gained from this book will more than compensate for the time which is devoted to its reading. It is most valuable because, in my judgment, there is no man in America more familiar with, and aware of, the Communist conspiracy than the author." He went on to state "Mr. Hoover has, during his lifetime, been given literally hundreds of awards in tribute to his exemplary service to our country. These range from a 1936 award from the Boys' Clubs of America in recognition of his services on behalf of the boyhood of America to the 'President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service' bestowed on him by our President only a month ago. To these tributes, I simply add that in writing Masters of Deceit, J. Edgar Hoover has again done a great service to the people of America." E

Page A2083, Senator Talmadge, (D) Georgia, extended his remarks concerning the book "Masters of Deceit." Mr. Talmadge stated "No American is better qualified to write such a book than is Mr. Hoover and it should be required reading for every American who is proud of his heritage and concerned about its preservation." He included with his remarks a review of the book as contained in volume VII, No. 5, of the Firing Line, official publication of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion.

JOHN B. OAKES
"THE NEW YORK TIMES" EDITORIAL BOARD

John B. Oakes, member, "The New York Times" Editorial Board, has written a review of the Director's book "Masters of Deceit," which appears in an advance copy dated March 9, 1958, of "The New York Times" Book Review Section. The article is entitled "Conspirators Against The American Way." The Director has inquired "What do our files show on Oakes? H."

John B. Oakes has not been investigated by the Bureau. A Washington Credit Bureau report of May, 1943, reveals that at that time Oakes was a first lieutenant in the Army stationed at Camp Richie, was single, and had resided in Northern Virginia and the District of Columbia prior to entering the Service. He reportedly came to Washington, D. C., from New York in about 1937 and until 1946, with Service time excluded, was employed by "The Washington Post" as a reporter. Previously, he had been employed as a journalist by the "Trenton Times," Trenton, New Jersey. He is a nephew of Adolph Ochs, former publisher of "The New York Times" who died in 1935. He is described as a man with financial means.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, in her column of March 11, 1954, refers to an article by Oakes which appeared in "The New York Times" Magazine entitled "This Is The Real, The Lasting Damage." Mrs. Roosevelt mentions that this article talks for the first time very openly about the fear of saying anything which may cause one to be called a communist. She says the fear has fallen on our public men, teachers, ministers, and certainly on our young people. (62-62735-A)

Westbrook Pegler, in an article entitled "Is The Times Afraid?" dated March 12, 1954, referred to Oakes as being bashful and inquired "Who is this shy editorial pundit of the New York Times?" Pegler relates that he had written Oakes daring him to explain why he, Oakes, had concealed pertinent information from a smear on Joe McCarthy.

Bureau files reveal that John B. Oakes, in 1955, was a director of the Carrie Chapman Catt Memorial Fund, Incorporated, which organization is described as a research and educational fund created by the League of Women Voters of the United States who had decided that a need existed for

Mr. McGuire thought the Director and you might be interested in the reaction of Jimmy Donovan of United Press to the Director's book. Donovan, some years ago, covered the FBI and the Justice Department for United Press and has always been very friendly. Donovan stated he thought the Director's book was one of the finest treatises he had ever seen on the subject matter and he thought the reviews which had been written on it, with the exception of the New York Times, had been excellent.

Mr. McGuire inquired as to whether he knew Leslie Hanscom, doing book reviews for the New York World Telegram-Sun. Donovan stated he had never heard of him but, as is well known in the publishing field, the Scripps-Howard papers have a penchant for being caught out on a limb. Donovan, of course, has no respect for Scripps-Howard at all, either professionally or as a competing news service.

Donovan then went back to the book, advising that he felt this was the type of analysis of communism which would be paying dividends for many years as it more properly should work its way into public libraries and school libraries where youngsters and students coming up for the next generation would have a basic document to refer to instead of the gobbledygook which has been written in such a confusing manner by other people over the years on the subject matter.

Donovan thought Lyle Wilson's book review was excellent, and he was advised we thought so too and the Director had so expressed himself in a personal note to Wilson.

While talking to Luther Huston on another matter, Mr. McGuire asked Huston if he had ever heard of Leslie Hanscom. Luther stated he thought he knew most of the New York writers but Hanscom, judging by his review in the New York World Telegram-Sun, was probably some rookie pitcher being

For record purposes, at 11:15 AM today, Sherwin Badger of Time magazine's Washington office (RE 7-8050), telephoned Wick. In the past, Badger has been most friendly to the Bureau.

Badger said the book reviewer, handling "Masters of Deceit" whom he did not identify by name at Time's New York office, had sent down the following question for Mr. Hoover: "What is Mr. Hoover's explanation for the absence in 'Masters of Deceit' of any reference to Hiss or fringe characters in that case?"

Badger asked that this question be put to Mr. Hoover.

ACTION TAKEN:

Wick told Badger Mr. Hoover was not in his office at this time, but that in truth the question has been answered by Mr. Hoover in his foreword to the book on page VIII where he states "I have sought to avoid sensationalism..." and further on where he states "Consequently, where illustrative incidents seemed advisable, I have selected those that have occurred most frequently and are most typical of the communism that is seeking daily to undermine our liberties. I have also deliberately avoided identifying many names and places."

Badger was told, as any reviewer can determine, the book is based on the everyday working techniques of the Communist Party. Furthermore, if a specific case did not present a particular technique, it was not included. Badger was told Mr. Hoover had not included names for their own sake per se but had utilized the techniques of the Party employed in many many cases not identified by case name.

Badger asked whether Mr. Hoover could be so quoted as above and Wick told him this would not be proper, that Mr. Hoover is not here at the moment and as a matter of courtesy, Wick was only referring him to the obvious answer which is on page VIII of the foreword. Badger was told the book will stand on its own feet and obviously the reviewer's question is amply answered in the foreword.

While talking with Wick on another matter today, Jim Lee of the International News Service (INS) who handles our Ten Most Wanted Fugitives Program at INS, told Wick he intends to write an anniversary story. As you know, Friday, March 14, 1958, marks the 8th Anniversary of the inauguration of this program by the three wire services.

Lee said he felt greatly heartened by the fact we have been able to apprehend two of our fugitives in the last four or five days after so long a period. He said he was convinced that the fugitives have simply dug themselves underground and only by a stint of hard work had the FBI been able to turn them up. Lee said he had all the material he needed and would write an anniversary piece on the remaining eight fugitives for release by all INS clients throughout the United States March 14, 1958. He said time would not permit INS headquarters to provide photographs anew on all fugitives to the clients. Lee will suggest to each client, however, that their morgues be reviewed and photographs of each subject be run in connection with the Lee piece in each paper.

Lee was thanked for his interest in the program and also Wick mentioned the Director was very pleased with his write-up on the book and most appreciative of his interest in taking the time to write such a fine review of "Masters of Deceit." Lee said the pleasure was all his and he only regrets that some papers cut out part of it although he has seen reprints of his complete review in Indiana and Wisconsin papers.

Brownwood, Texas

Dear Mr. McGaughy:

It was kind of you to write on March 11, 1958, regarding my new book, "Masters of Deceit." While I do not have a supply of books on hand, I am sure that you can obtain a copy from your local booksellers or from Henry Holt and Company, Inc., 383 Madison Avenue, New York 17, New York.

Sincerely yours,

John Edgar Hoover
Director

ASAC Simon called from New York at 2 P.M. today. An individual whose name and address was given as [redacted] The Yale Club, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City, had just called to advise the New York Office that a copy of "Masters of Deceit" which he had purchased had 18 blank pages in the book. [redacted] indicated he was not concerned, that he could get another book, however, he thought possibly someone in the printing establishment was trying to sabotage the Director. Simon thanked him for the information and suggested he might want to get in touch with Henry Holt and Company or the book store from which he purchased the book relative to obtaining a new one.

Although this is a minor matter, it is possible that if this happened in one instance it might have happened in other instances, consequently, it is felt that you might like to advise Ed Rigg in connection with this matter.

ACTION:

There is attached a letter prepared for your signature to Ed Rigg concerning the above matter.
